Full job description

Your new company

This federal government agency play a key role in delivering services which aim to safeguard Australians at risk of online harms, promoting safer & more positive online experiences. This is a unique opportunity to work across digital products that assist online safety across the country.

Your new role

You will act as a central coordinating body across the Digital team to balance delivery of high volume, fast-paced digital production alongside longer-term strategic product management, service improvement and project delivery activities. You will be fluent in digital product management principles and operations, and will be experienced in design thinking, research and analysis, and fit-for-purpose agile delivery methods.

What you'll need to succeed

- Minimum 5 years demonstrated digital management experience
- Demonstrated experience with digital content and design production
- Demonstrated experience managing websites
- Strong knowledge of digital product management principles
- Strong expertise in using Google Analytics, reporting tools and user experience research to ensure products respond to user needs
- Experience with learning management systems (LMS)
- Strong understanding of design and UX principles, and the value of brand guidelines and written style manuals
- Strong experience using Jira and other digital product tools to get the job done

What you'll get in return

This is a 6 month contract with a high chance of extending continually.

Opportunity to work on high impact digital channels used across the country.
Flexible and collaborative working culture.
