We are bold, agile and open to new ideas and approaches, whether embracing cutting-edge technologies, developing our people, or innovating the way we work.

What you'll need to succeed

As Systems Administrator, you will oversee the maintenance of the enterprise datacentre, cloud and network within the organisation as well as provide user and technical support. You will be responsible for:

- Ensuring that infrastructure platforms are maintained in an efficient and organised manner
- Driving administration and maintenance of servers and platforms
- Monitoring of all backup and system logs and proactively identifying any issues that may arise
- Monitoring and rolling out security patches as required
- Identifying any potential vulnerabilities and mitigating risks to the networks, operating systems and applications.

To be successful, you will have strong problem-solving skills and be confident working with a range of technologies, including Windows Server, Microsoft Exchange, Active Directory, Azure, Veeam, Office 365 and VMware. This is a great role to impact our future approach to systems administration and help shape the growth of the team.

What you'll get in return

We work in a rapidly evolving industry and to help support you in navigating these changes and to enable you to work more efficiently, we invest in your training, development and technology, as well as offer a flexible work environment with the opportunity to work between the office and home.

We encourage diversity of thought to create new ideas and innovate our ways of working and our leadership group is committed to helping you develop your skills and career through on-going training, coaching and support, which could include a move to one of our other 33 countries that we operate in.

A career at Hays means working with skilled people from diverse backgrounds, in a great atmosphere and with career advancement opportunities.
